WOULD-be singers were given the opportunity to sing with a choir at a workshop with Chepstow Choral Society.

The choir extended an invitation to singers to join them at Chepstow School for an afternoon tackling songs from Les Miserables and The Messiah.

Chair Sue Carter said: "The workshop is an opportunity for people to come along and experience singing with a choir."

The three-hour workshop which was led by the society's musical director, Graham Bull, finished with a mini-concert for friends and family.

Musical accompaniment was provided by assistant musical director Marjorie Duerden.

The choir will perform The Messiah in full with the society's orchestra at St Mary's Church, Chepstow on April 5 next year.

The society's next public performance is its annual carol concert at St Mary's Church on December 8 with seasonal music and readings.

The choir welcomes singers from all sections but is particularly keen to attract more basses and tenors.
